Michigan Water Environment Association Honors Two Severn Trent Services Employees
Project managers Dale Hill and Jerry Seay recognized for excellence in operations

FORT WASHINGTON, Pa. – July 21, 2006 – Two Severn Trent Services project managers received awards from the Michigan Water Environment Association (MWEA) at the organization's annual meeting held June 25-28 in Harbor Spring, Mi. Dale Hill, project manager at a Coca Cola bottling plant in Paw Paw, Mich., received the Loren F. Oeming Award for outstanding operation of an industrial facility. Jerry Seay received the Donald M. Pierce Award for outstanding municipal plant operation for his work at a wastewater treatment facility in Kalkaska, Mich.

Both Hill and Seay were responsible for the startup of separate treatment facilities and continue to oversee project management at their respective plants.

Established in 1925, MWEA represents more than 1,700 water quality professionals statewide and distributes awards annually for excellence in careers involving the water environment. MWEA is a member association of the Water Environment Federation (WEF), an international organization with more than 100,000 members worldwide.

"Dale and Jerry have both produced outstanding results at their facilities, and being recognized for excellent work is a great achievement," said Dana Kaas, Severn Trent Services vice president for Contract Operations. "Hundreds of cities and industrial clients rely on Severn Trent Services to protect their water and wastewater treatment investments and ensure regulatory compliance. Our professional operations personnel help improve process control while reducing administrative and operational costs."
