After the Storm: Resource Tips

SHELTER, FOOD & HEALTH

- The American Red Cross has a listing of open shelters available for your use. Anyone can stay and all you have to do is show up. To see the full listing of open sites and to see what you can and cannot bring, click here.
- Airbnb is offering homes to stay in for those affected by the disaster. All service fees are being waived between August 23, 2017, and September 1, 2017. Also, many homeowners that use this site to rent their properties are offering their spaces up for free. To take advantage of this very generous offer, click here.
- The Salvation Army currently has four homeless shelters – Harbor Light for men, Sally’s House for women, Family Residence for families, and Conroe Red Shield Lodge for individuals and families- are preparing for overflow and will not turn anyone away due to the inclement weather. They also have six Corps Community Centers that are stocking up their canteens (mobile kitchens) or vans with water and snacks to assist affected communities.
- For those of you that have already suffered damages from the storm and your area was declared a national disaster, you may qualify for Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) assistance. For more information and to apply, you can go to www.DisasterAssistance.gov or call 1-800-621-FEMA (3362).
- Express Scripts has arranged through its retail pharmacy network to provide emergency access to Rx benefits. This will enable them to process overrides to dispense medications to avoid gaps in care – specifically if there are mail order medications lost or unable to ship, or if a short term supply is needed. Call Express Scripts at 1-800-282-2881 or Health Advocate at 1-855-424-6400 for more information.
